Down On the Border

During the Mexican Campaign, when General John J. Pershing led the American Army across the Rio Grande, the imperative and vital necessity of Motor transport for any army became apparent.

Hundreds of commercial vehicles were employed to keep open the lines of communication and bring up supplies. While the various trucks used gave generally excellent service Army Officers and truck manufacturers were quick to see that a standardization of units and construction must be effected before the maximum production and efficiency could be reached. During the Summer of 1917, shortly after America entered the World War, a series of conferences were held in Washington to design a standardized truck for U. S. Army

Mr. B. A. Gramm, America's pioneer in the motor truck industry acted in an advisory capacity in the promotion and pushing forward the entire program, and it was at the Gramm-Bernstein plant, and under his supervision that the First Liberty Truck was built. The Gramm-Bernstein Company today is recognized as one of the leading Truck Producing organizations in the country. A recognition of the merits and stability of their trucks has brought them a vastly increasing business. The Serial Gold Notes of this concern bearing 7% percent interest, and offered by us at par and accrued interest are a safe investment.
